However, if the task you face demands creativity and novel ideas, it's best to tackle it at your "worst" time of day!

Most people have a perfect time of day when they feel they are at their best, whether in the morning, evening, or afternoon. (A) Some of us are night owls, some early birds, and others in between may feel most active during the afternoon hours. (B) If you are able to organize your day and divide your work, make it a point to deal with tasks that demand attention at your best time of the day. (C) So if you are an early bird make sure to attack your creative task in the evening, and vice versa for night owls. (D) When your mind and body are less alert than at your "peak" hours, the muse of creativity awakens and is allowed to roam more freely. (E) In other words, when your mental machinery is loose rather than standing at attention, the creativity flows.

- ① A ② B ③ C ④ D ⑤ E
