다음 글의 요지를 가장 잘 이해한 사람은? [H1-1806 40번]

Recent studies point to the importance of warm physical contact for healthy relationships with others. In one study, participants who briefly held a cup of hot (versus iced) coffee judged a target person as having a "warmer" personality (generous, caring) ; in another study, participants holding a hot (versus cold) pack were more likely to choose a gift for a friend instead of something for themselves. These findings illustrate that mere contact experiences of physical warmth activate feelings of interpersonal warmth. Moreover, this temporarily increased activation of interpersonal warmth feelings then influences judgments toward other people in an unintentional manner. Such feelings activated in one context last for a while thereafter and have influence on judgment and behavior in later contexts without the person's awareness.

- ① 지효: Sometimes, physical contact might hinder the interpersonal relationship especially in different cultural settings. This is because there is no single set of widely accepted manners in all countries around the world.
- ② 미나: Having friendly conversations frequently might help to establish a close relationship between a teacher and a student. Those casual talks can help both parties to have a positive impression of each other, and finally it can strengthen their emotional bond.
- ③ 쓰위: We should make an effort to build a good reputation by behaving kindly and gently towards others. It is considered as an essential factor for success in society.
- ④ 모모: There should often be close contact of a physical nature between parents and their children, such as hugging, holding hands, and patting. It can help to build stronger trust between them, and reinforce relational harmony.
- ⑤ 나연: Pets could be one of the simplest ways to feel physical warmth. For example, teenagers experiencing severe hormonal changes in puberty can stabilize their emotions and reduce any anxiety by holding pets in their arms.
