M: Hello, students! Last class, we studied the functions of insects' wings. Today, we're going to move on to look at some functions of animals' tails. One of these is communication. As you know, dogs can wag their tails to show that they're happy. Tails can also serve as a means of protection. For example, horses use theirs to keep harmful insects away, and crocodiles defend themselves from attackers using their tails as weapons. There are other functions of tails as well. Squirrels use their tails to keep balance and monkeys can hold on to trees with theirs. These are just a few examples. Now, let's study them in more detail by watching a video clip.

M: What do you mean?

W: For example, when I read a book, I imagine what the characters look like and what will happen next.

M: Oh, do you?

M: Oh, I forgot about that. We'll miss you.

W: I know, but I play an important role in the musical. I'm sorry I can't go with you.

W: Well, I don't want to spend more than 1,000 dollars.

M: You're right. Then how about these models?

W: Hmm.... I'd like one with at least 500 liters of storage.
