M: Hello, residents. This is Andy from the management office. We're currently collecting recyclable garbage twice a week, on Wednesdays and Sundays, from 7 a.m. to 9 p.m. But we've had a lot of complaints from residents concerning the time, location, and smell. We're doing our best to address these complaints but it's been difficult to come up with satisfactory solutions. So, to deal with this matter effectively, we're going to hold a public hearing at the community hall on Friday, March 26, at 8 p.m. We're asking everyone to attend the public hearing. Thank you in advance for your cooperation.

W: Eric, I made this pizza myself. Try some.

M: Thank you, Yujin. [Pause] Mmm.... It's delicious!

W: Is it? I watched a cooking video and followed the recipe from it.

M: You're a really good cook. Not everyone can just watch a video and make delicious food like you just did.

W: Well, I think it's all thanks to the cooking tools I've recently bought.

M: Cooking tools? You mean utensils?

W: Yes. Having the right utensils makes cooking much easier.

M: You seem to be very happy with your utensils.

W: Yeah. They make cooking more enjoyable.

M: Oh, that's why you're totally into cooking these days!

W: Definitely.

M: Now I understand why chefs emphasize the importance of using the right utensils in cooking.

W: Yes. I also told her that I made it in your class. She said she'd like to learn from you, too.

M: I'm glad to hear that. Why don't you invite her to join my class sometime?

W: Yeah, I suggested signing up for the next one-day class together.

M: Good. You will get to spend quality time together.

W: I think so, too. I'll let her know how to register.

M: Thank you. Today you'll learn how to arrange spring flowers in a vase. Look here. I've made this one in advance.

W: Yes. It's his favorite toy.

M: I see. Is this striped tent for Coco?

W: Yeah. I bought it for him last week.

M: It looks cozy. You also put the steps in front of the sofa. What are they for?

W: They're pet steps to help Coco get on the sofa.

M: Ah, he can't jump onto it yet. Hey, Rachel, what's this elephant toy on the sofa?

W: It's another toy for Coco.

W: This small bottle is $80, and that larger one is $100.

M: I'll take the larger one.

W: Okay. We also sell candles with the same scent for $50 each.

M: Oh! My sister really likes scented candles. I'll take a candle, too.

W: Great. Since you're buying two items, you also get a 10% discount voucher. You can use it for your next purchase.

M: I see. Could you wrap them up, please?

W: Actually, I didn't. I thought I had found the right store, but now I changed my mind.

M: Did you find a store that offers lower prices?

W: No. The store I found was the cheapest and even had free delivery.

M: Then, were the file folders sold out?

W: No. They have plenty in stock.

M: If so, why are you still searching for another store?

W: Because their scheduled delivery will take too long. I need the folders tomorrow.

W: Yes. The sooner, the better!

W: Good idea. Let me see. All of these five ladders look good.

M: Yes, but let's exclude this one. It's too much to spend over $100 for just a ladder.

W: I agree. What about the height?

M: Considering our house, it should be at least 120 cm.

W: Okay. I think the weight a ladder can support is also important.

M: Oh, definitely. It should be able to hold more than 100 kg.

W: Right. Then we only have two options now.

16번부터 17번은 두 번 들려줍니다.

[16 ~ 17] 다음을 듣고, 물음에 답하십시오.

W: Okay, students. We just talked about idiomatic expressions related to color. As you know, idioms are creative descriptions. We use them to share an idea or feeling. Now, let's learn some animal idioms in English. The first idiom is "at a snail's pace," which means moving very slowly. This idiom is easy to understand because we all know how slowly snails move. The next one, "hold your horses," is a common way of telling someone to wait or slow down. If someone says "hold your horses," they're telling you to "wait a minute." And children often hear from their parents, "I'm watching you like a hawk." This expression is often used to make sure that someone doesn't misbehave or make a mistake. The last idiom is "I'll be a monkey's uncle." People use this expression when something unexpected or unlikely happens. It's used in a comical way. These idioms may be confusing at first, but once you learn them, you'll have a fun new way of talking.
